Our dying process produces richly colored garments that vary in hue, making each one a unique canvas that amplifies our original artwork.

Wild Ravens is the husband/wife team of Mark & Terry Smith. Together they hand dye and hand screen clothing with Terry's original designs.

Terry, a wildlife artist and weirdness vector/magnet, has always been the happiest when outdoors or doing artwork. It was inevitable that her intense love for the outdoors and nature would lead her to specialize in wildlife and outdoor art. In addition to studying with many private instructors, Terry has an associates degree in Fine Arts from The Junior College of Albany. Terry's plans for the future include a return to large scale oil paintings and life studies of birds of prey.

Mark, computer consultant, business guy, and weirdness buffer (sort of), has always been able to get computers to do what he wants. He has an AAS in Computer Information Systems from Hudson Valley Community College, and his BS in CIS from The College of Saint Rose.
